

Break-Fix vs Managed IT

There comes a time for all growing businesses to choose between the traditional break-fix model and the more proactive approach of Managed IT Services. While break-fix IT offers a pay-as-you-go solution for immediate issues, Managed IT Services provide a comprehensive, ongoing strategy that aligns with the growth and scalability needs of growing and medium to large-sized businesses.

Reactive Approach

Waits for problems to occur, leading to potential downtime and lost productivity.

Unpredictable Cost

Expenses vary based on the frequency and severity of IT issues, making budgeting challenging.

Limited Scope

Focuses on immediate fixes rather than long-term IT health, potentially overlooking underlying issues.

No Preventative Maintenance

Lack of regular maintenance can lead to repeated issues and system vulnerabilities.

Lack of Dedicated Support

Often no guarantee of immediate assistance, leading to extended downtime during critical periods.

Scalability Changes

Break-fix services may not be able to accommodate rapid business growth or scaling down.

Minimal Strategic Input

Little to no guidance on how IT can drive business growth or adapt to changing market trends.

Security Risks

Inconsistent security measures can leave businesses vulnerable to cyber threats.

Proactive Monitoring

Continuous visibility of IT systems to prevent issues before they occur, ensuring minimal downtime.

Fixed Monthly Cost

Predictable pricing that allows for better financial planning and cost management.

Comprehensive IT Strategy

Holistic approach to IT management, including long-term planning and strategy alignment with business goals.

Regular Maintenance and Updates

Ensures systems are up-to-date and running efficiently, reducing the risk of future problems.
